—Atlanta Constitution: "The newest Atlanta drink is 'milk shake.' You get it at the soda fountain. The mixer of cooling beverages pours out a glass of sweet milk, puts in a big spoonful of crushed ice, puts in a mixture of uncrushed ingredients, draws a bit of any desired syrup, shakes the milk in a tin can like a barkeeper makes lemonade, sprinkles a little nutmeg on the foaming milk until it looks something like a Tom and Jerry, sets it out for you, and you pay five cents."

It was of eleven and one-half months' growth only.

OBITUARY.

"He Giveth His Beloved Sleep"

Yesterday, in the quiet of a perfect Sabbath day, as the sun was nearing the West, even as the last holy words of prayer and benediction fell from the honored pastor's lips, the pure spirit of Jennie Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings, passed from the frail body which had been its home on earth. All the care that the love of friends could give was lavished upon her, but for weeks it had been evident that the precious days were numbered, consumption having claimed her as its victim.

From her earliest years she had been an object of devotion to her family, sharing with an older brother the affliction of impaired vision. It was for her sake that the parents moved to Wisconsin in 1867, from a neighboring state, that the children might enjoy the advantages of the Wisconsin school for the blind, and settled in Janesville that they might be near home.

John entered the school at once, but Jennie waited two years, entering when she was eight years old, and from that time until within the last month she has been connected as pupil, assistant, or teacher, with the exception of a short time spent in teaching music at Sharon. In all this time and in each capacity, she had given unflinching satisfaction, and had won and held the love and esteem of all who knew her. Wonderful is not too strong a term for the sweetness and bravery with which she carried on her work under difficulties that would have appalled a less courageous soul; but she recognized no obstacle as excuse for anything less than the faithful work which, combined with her natural aptitude for teaching, crowned her labors with marked success. Her cheerfulness never wavered, and tendered thoughtfulness and appreciation of others was a marked feature of her character. For years she had been the principal medium between the outside world and the patient brother, to whose original affliction had been added that of total loss of hearing. For Jennie, it was happiness to sit by this brother and, hand in hand, by a system understood between them, by a system which conveyed to him the information her own bright mind had gathered in store. What her death is to him is beyond human comprehension. This is the first breach death has made in the home circle and to the heart broken parents, brothers and sisters, whose names the last words of her loving lips, will a kindly community offer heartfelt sympathy in this hour of sorrow and death.

"No more death! Take comfort, ye who weep. Give thanks to God, and raise the howl of lament. They are not lost—their Beloved sleep. And He who takes and keeps the holy dead. Are they not safe with Him? and when the veil is rent for us, and eight supernal faith. Then, reunited, shall never fall. For He hath said, there shall be no more death."

The funeral will occur to-morrow at ten o'clock, at the family residence in the first ward, Dr. J. F. Conover officiating.

A HENRY ON FIRE.

Considerable commotion on the streets and a loss of $150 to the owner.

An alarm of fire was telephoned to the fire department at 6:55 o'clock Sunday evening from the residence of M. M. Phelps Esq., 29 South Lincoln St., calling the fire engine. The department responded in "double quick" time, and in a moment all the apparatus was on West Milwaukee street, moving at something less than a 240 feet per second. Arriving at the cistern it was learned that the fire was out, and the hose was not laid.

The fire was in the hen-house of Mr. Charles W. Schwartz, on North street, between Academy and Locust streets, and was extinguished by the neighbors with pails of water obtained from wells and cisterns in the vicinity. The fire caught from a lamp used in an incubator of brooder, and the loss will amount to $150, with no insurance. This includes the partial destruction of the building, which was a new structure, besides tools, and about one hundred fancy chickens, all belonging to Mr. Schwartz. The fire was discovered first by Mrs. Schwartz, who rushed into the building to save a brooder containing a large number of young chicks, but upon opening the door she was met and driven back by a sheet of flame; her hair and eyebrows were burned. A large number of the neighbors immediately rallied, and went to work with a will, and soon had the fire extinguished. I being Sunday evening, just before church service, a very large number of people turned out and followed the fire department to the scene of the fire.

THE CHURCHES.

A Lecture on "Mexico," by the Rev. G. M. Hubbs, -Ordinary Services.

Yesterday morning the Rev. Thomas Walker preached in the Presbyterian church, while the Rev. W. F. Brown took Mr. Walker's place at the First M. E. church. In the evening the Rev. G. S. Hubbs, who has just returned from the southwest, after a visit of thirteen months, delivered a lecture to the congregation of this church upon "His Mexico and the New Testament." His discourse was principally upon Roman Catholicism in the localities settled by the Spaniards as compared to the religion in our own country. The audience was of very fair size, and listened to Mr. Hubbs' remarks with evident interest. The praise that this gentleman has received in other parts of the country was evidently well deserved.

The Rev. A. J. Van Wagner, at the Congregational church, preached again upon the series "Janesville by Gaslight." The subject last evening was "Mistakes and Wrongs." Theore going was spoken of as something which, if not to be denounced, should not receive the support of church members to any extent. The speaker also handled vulgarity and pernicious literature very candidly. Closing with an earnest appeal for chastity in all circles of life.

Court Street church was well filled yesterday morning, and the pastor preached a most excellent sermon on "The false and true in serving men." The discourse contained much of independent thought forcibly expressed, and well sustained by bible truth. In the evening the speaker took for his theme "The gospel of peace" and succeeded in making clear the fact that the best specimens of moral and christian character are produced through the discipline of pinching and pruning. Mr. Peake is recovering from his attack of asthma, and gives promise of being an efficient worker.

At St. Mary's church the Rev. Father Robb preached a sermon on the labor question that was in many respects a remarkable one. He handled the subject in a way that made his discourse of great interest to his hearers and that furnished much food for reflection. Among other points touched on was the abuse of free speech and the freedom of the press, two things that have been much talked of lately.

An Old and Blind Lady Fatally Harmed.

Detroit Free Press of Saturday: "Mrs. Mary Garrison, aged 65 years, and totally blind, widow of Moses W. D. and George Keozie, who makes her home with George Keozie, who occupies a portion of Dr. H. Hunt's residence, corner of Bluff and Wheat streets, met with a heart-rending accident this forenoon. From the effects of which she will die. Although totally blind, she moves about the house freely, and performs various household duties. About 9:30 o'clock this forenoon, as she often did, she went to the stove where there was a bright wood fire burning, and lifted off one of the griddles, when her cotton apron caught the blaze from the stove and in a moment the lady was wrapped in a sheet of fire. Her desperate screams soon brought several persons to her side. Of these Charles Hunt was the first and he threw two pails of water upon her. Shortly after Aid. Charles Keonlin wrapped a blanket about her body. Despite the efforts made to save her, almost every particle of clothing was burned from her body and she was literally roasted from her knees to her forehead, and one hand was so dreadfully burned that the flesh dropped from the fingers.

Mrs. Garrison retained her consciousness all through the dreadful ordeal, and when Dr. Dean arrived she asked him if he thought she would die and he replied that she could live only a few days at the longest. The lady calmly replied: "I know it, and I do not wish to linger and suffer, I would rather go and meet my dear ones beyond."

Mrs. Garrison has been blind a number of years. She came from Niles, Michigan, with Mr. George Keozie with whom she has resided for several years. She is a member of the Methodist church and at her request her pastor, Rev. G. F. Reynolds was summoned to her bedside.

AN ADVOCATE FOR THE LAYING OF CHALK TRACKS ON OUR COMMON ROADS.

(From the Chicago Times.)

Mr. O. L. DeForest, of Janesville, Wis., sends a communication to the Times in which he advocates the laying of cheap tracks on country roads. He states that the result of numerous experiments made by him that a strong and durable track, provided with a sufficient number of turnouts, can be constructed at a cost of $500 per mile. He finds that a good support for carriage wheels can be made of wood, stone, gravel, brick, or any other material that will form a compact and smooth wheel track. Of course iron or steel can be used, but these materials are much more expensive. He states that a track can be constructed for much less expense than a road bed can be covered to a sufficient thickness with gravel or broken stone. It is much better than a plank road and not as costly. A team will draw a load of three tons over a track with greater ease than it will draw one ton over a common straw road, even when it is in good condition. A carriage will not become covered with mud in passing over a track, and the wheels will receive no injury. The horses will move much faster, and with less fatigue. A track insures a passable road at all seasons of the year.

Few will be inclined to dispute the statements made by this correspondent. A track is as valuable for wagons, carts, buggies, and carriages as for railway cars. In all cities where there are tracks laid for street cars their value is seen for all sorts of vehicles. In Liverpool, London, and Glasgow tracks have been laid down between numerous manufactories, docks, and warehouses and railway freight stations. Horseless is dear in these cities, and any arrangement that makes it practical for a team to haul very heavy loads is found to be economical. Years ago Canadian lumbermen found that a track made of hewn or sawed timber to be profitable. They enabled them to move logs in summer as well as in winter. These wooden railroads were so constructed that the tracks could be easily moved from one place to another as the supply of logs was exhausted. In nearly all cities and iron mines there are tracks on which small cars are hauled. The proprietors of numerous stone quarries and brickyards in this country have constructed tracks to connect with railway stations, docks, and places for receiving freight on canals. In every instance they have found them to be profitable.

In a somewhat distant future, when the praise of the west becomes thickly settled and it becomes cheap, it is possible that tracks may be laid on many country roads. There is, however, little prospect for such means of transit for many years. Experience and observation show that a track of iron or steel is cheaper than a long run trestle made of wood, concrete, stone or brick. Materials liable to speedy decay or disintegration are not suitable for forming a track. A track that is out of repair will cause great annoyance and constant trouble. A wooden track can be economical in the lumbering regions of Canada, where timber is plenty, but it would not be economical in the parts of this country that are most in need of improved roads. Lumber is very scarce and the scarcity of fuel to burn on a track is obvious. A track that is strong and enduring track can not be made of brick. They would absorb water, if placed on the ground, be broken by the frost, and crumbled by the weight of the passing wheels.

Aside from the great cost of laying a track on roads to be used by vehicles of all kinds, there are other objections to it. Provision must be made for constant inspection and repair. Gangs of men must be employed to keep the track in good order. A road broken or thrown out of place will put a stop to the traffic. During the winter the cost of keeping the snow removed from a track is very great. A track laid on a common country road must be cleared of snow after every storm. To do this properly would require a snow plow, a strong team, and several men. All street railway companies find it necessary to keep their tracks constantly employed in removing dirt from the tracks. During the spring and fall large quantities of mud are thrown on the tracks by passing wagons, which, if it was suffered to remain, would cover the cars from the tracks. The expense of keeping a track for steam or horse cars in a passable condition is always very great. There would be still greater expense in keeping a track on a common dirt road in good condition, as much dirt would be washed down from the road as would be brought by passing teams.

A single track would not answer the purposes of travel. There must be a double track on every road, and there would be constant difficulty about turning out. In fact one track would not well accommodate all persons who were traveling in the same direction. A man driving in a buggy in order to post a letter or catch a train would not so like a farmer who was taking a wagon load of produce to market. Persons who drive drays, wagons, carts, carriages, and buggies on horse-railway tracks in cities accommodate themselves to the speed made by the cars. The like could not be done on country roads as no class of patrons would move at a uniform speed. If the rails that form the track were considerably above the surface of the road, the wheels of vehicles would be in constant danger of running off. If these wheels were raised they would become covered with dirt, stones, and other impediments, which would require frequent removal. The scheme of laying a track on common country roads, to be used for all classes of vehicles, looks well on paper, but apparently there are sufficient objections to it to condemn it as impractical.

Mydriophobin Purely Imaginary.

Dr. Wm. Lobman, of Baltimore: I don't believe in Pasteur's inoculation theory because I don't believe in hydrophobia. It is, in my opinion, an imaginary disease, and I defy anybody to produce a well authenticated instance where hydrophobia attacked an idiot or an infant bitten by a rabid dog. It needs a good, vivid imagination as an adjunct to the disease. Some years ago a man came to me for cure of what he claimed was the bite of a mad dog. It did not look to me like a wound made by teeth, but I cauterized it to satisfy him. A month afterwards that man died of all the symptoms of hydrophobia as described by standard authorities. After his death it was established conclusively that the wound was made by a nail in a fence that he climbed to get away from the dog, and that the animal was very old and only had three teeth—those very far back in the jaw and impossible to bite with. That case shattered my faith in hydrophobia, and subsequent investigations destroyed it altogether. There is no such thing.

A Lecture on "Mexico," by the Rev. G. M. Hubbs, -Ordinary Services.

Yesterday morning the Rev. Thomas Walker preached in the Presbyterian church, while the Rev. W. F. Brown took Mr. Walker's place at the First M. E. church. In the evening the Rev. G. S. Hubbs, who has just returned from the southwest, after a visit of thirteen months, delivered a lecture to the congregation of this church upon "His Mexico and the New Testament." His discourse was principally upon Roman Catholicism in the localities settled by the Spaniards as compared to the religion in our own country. The audience was of very fair size, and listened to Mr. Hubbs' remarks with evident interest. The praise that this gentleman has received in other parts of the country was evidently well deserved.

The Rev. A. J. Van Wagner, at the Congregational church, preached again upon the series "Janesville by Gaslight." The subject last evening was "Mistakes and Wrongs." Theore going was spoken of as something which, if not to be denounced, should not receive the support of church members to any extent. The speaker also handled vulgarity and pernicious literature very candidly. Closing with an earnest appeal for chastity in all circles of life.

Court Street church was well filled yesterday morning, and the pastor preached a most excellent sermon on "The false and true in serving men." The discourse contained much of independent thought forcibly expressed, and well sustained by bible truth. In the evening the speaker took for his theme "The gospel of peace" and succeeded in making clear the fact that the best specimens of moral and christian character are produced through the discipline of pinching and pruning. Mr. Peake is recovering from his attack of asthma, and gives promise of being an efficient worker.

At St. Mary's church the Rev. Father Robb preached a sermon on the labor question that was in many respects a remarkable one. He handled the subject in a way that made his discourse of great interest to his hearers and that furnished much food for reflection. Among other points touched on was the abuse of free speech and the freedom of the press, two things that have been much talked of lately.

Mrs. Piche will spend the summer at her old home in Benton Harbor, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Piche will carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends, who will rejoice in their prosperity.

An Old and Blind Lady Fatally Harmed.

Detroit Free Press of Saturday: "Mrs. Mary Garrison, aged 65 years, and totally blind, widow of Moses W. D. and George Keozie, who makes her home with George Keozie, who occupies a portion of Dr. H. Hunt's residence, corner of Bluff and Wheat streets, met with a heart-rending accident this forenoon. From the effects of which she will die. Although totally blind, she moves about the house freely, and performs various household duties. About 9:30 o'clock this forenoon, as she often did, she went to the stove where there was a bright wood fire burning, and lifted off one of the griddles, when her cotton apron caught the blaze from the stove and in a moment the lady was wrapped in a sheet of fire. Her desperate screams soon brought several persons to her side. Of these Charles Hunt was the first and he threw two pails of water upon her. Shortly after Aid. Charles Keonlin wrapped a blanket about her body. Despite the efforts made to save her, almost every particle of clothing was burned from her body and she was literally roasted from her knees to her forehead, and one hand was so dreadfully burned that the flesh dropped from the fingers.

Mrs. Garrison retained her consciousness all through the dreadful ordeal, and when Dr. Dean arrived she asked him if he thought she would die and he replied that she could live only a few days at the longest. The lady calmly replied: "I know it, and I do not wish to linger and suffer, I would rather go and meet my dear ones beyond."

Mrs. Garrison has been blind a number of years. She came from Niles, Michigan, with Mr. George Keozie with whom she has resided for several years. She is a member of the Methodist church and at her request her pastor, Rev. G. F. Reynolds was summoned to her bedside.
